

Front-End Developer

SessionCam is looking for Front- End Developer to join our R&D team

SessionCam was recently acquired by Glassbox to deliver the industry's most complete and actionable view of all web and mobile interactions.

Together, we continue advancing our mission to provide greater insight and value into how companies engage with their customers online by creating frictionless digital journeys.

This is an opportunity to work with bleeding-edge technology and top-tier customers while solving problems at an incredible scale.

When was the last time you were excited to go to work?

What you'll be doing

- Lead the implementation of key tasks in a highly technological, innovative, and vibrant environment
- Be initiative and proactive
- Leading design sessions and reviews around frontend technology and best practices
- Work in collaboration with product, design and backend develops

What you will need

- 2+ years of relevant experience
- Proven in-depth knowledge of JavaScript fundamentals
- Comprehensive understanding of modern HTML, CSS and DOM API
- Good understanding of browser rendering behavior and performance
- Advanced knowledge and experience with at least one major client-side framework (such as Angular, React or VueJS)
- Ability to design and develop complex components independently, dealing with advanced architectural issues
- Keen and passionate for code quality, usability and end-user experience
- Results driven, fast learner, team player

An Advantage

- Degree in Computer Science